

Manufacturing Changes made to improve Service

Frico is the leading supplier of air curtains, radiant heaters and fan heaters in Europe with its own production in Germany and Sweden. Due to structural changes, an important course of action is to be made, with the production of specific ranges of air curtains moving from Schlierbach to both Windischbuch in Germany and to Frico Engineering, Skinnskatteberg, Sweden.

In order to use the advantages of existing, highly automated production techniques, it is more effective to move the production of special and customized air curtains to the production plant of Frico Engineering, close to the main factory and mother company Systemair in Sweden.

By the centralizing the production locations and optimising existing manufacturing processes, together with an intelligent logistics operation, powerful Group synergy can be used, which delivers to the requirements of the European and Global market.

Since 2004 the product brands of GELU and Frico have provided a powerful platform on the European market and have been a great success. The brands and products are delivering energy efficient solutions to the new exhibitions hall in Frankfurt, one of the largest construction projects currently taking place in Germany.

As a market leader, Frico is at the cutting edge of development of air curtains and other heating products, and also products for ventilation in cooperation with their mother company Systemair. In house product development and manufacturing mean high quality products and services, and the production centre in Sweden has one of Europe's most modern R&D-centre.

A competent Technical Sales network of personnel in the field is available to assist all levels of customers from Client Bodies, Consultants, Contractors and Distribution. An efficient supply of products is guaranteed locally.
